

What is the SEBBM?

The Spanish Biochemistry and Molecular Biology Society (SEBBM), founded in 1963, currently has over 3,100 members and is the main scientific society coordinating extensive activities in Spain related to Biochemistry and Molecular Biology. The SEBBM contributed significantly to the creation of the Federation of European Biochemical Societies (FEBS) in 1964, represents Spain in the International Union of Biochemistry and Molecular Biology (IUBMB), and is one of the founding members of the Confederation of Scientific Societies in Spain (COSCE).

SEBBM Meeting

The SEBBM annual meeting is attended by over 700 participants that can present their research work in more than 200 oral presentations and 500 panel presentations. The program includes plenary sessions, symposia and theme focused meetings of the various SEBBM Scientific Groups.

The biochemical societies of Argentina, Chile, Mexico and Portugal, as well as the Panamerican Association for Biochemistry and Molecular Biology (PABMB), are regular collaborators of the SEBBM Meeting.

The Scientific program of the SEBBM Meeting is complemented with a diffusion event entitled Biochemistry in the City, a research introductory course for students and a professional development workshop for young researchers.

SEBBM Journal

The SEBBM Journal was born along with the Society. Published every 3 months, it is dedicated to scientific culture, analyzing and reflecting on public and private research policies and promoting the social values of science.

Each of its issues focuses on a devoted subject related to the latest and more relevant scientific, cultural and social events.

SEBBM activities run all year round

The SEBBM carry out a series of complementary activities to inform and promote biochemistry and molecular biology throughout the year. It organizes webinars on the latest topics that are of interest to our members, a scientific photo competition, exhibitions, conferences, workshops and specialist courses in collaboration with universities and research centers. It also participates in the Science Week and the Researcher's Night and collaborates with the Instituto Cervantes to advertise abroad the scientific work carried out in Spain.

COLLABORATE WITH THE SEBBM

At the SEBBM, we know that technological advances are what allow us to further our knowledge, but we need to turn science into a product and help it to reach society in all of its dimensions and possibilities. That is why it is our goal as a Society to work hand in hand with technological companies. To that end, we have implemented a wide variety of mechanisms to facilitate their participation in all the activities of the SEBBM and we work daily to find new ways that can be adapted to meet everyone's needs and enable links to be strengthened with the academy. Because it is in everyone's interest to make our science a reality.
